EDMONTON, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 24, 1952

MRS. C. J. SOMERVILLE, GUEST OF HONOR AT FAREWELL PARTY

PLAMONDON — On Monday, Sept. 8, a farewell party was held in the community hall so that all would have the opportunity to express their appreciation to Mrs. C. J. Somerville who served as the district nurse here for the past two years and who is leaving to take a post-graduate course.

The ladies around town organized the affair and a very pleasant evening was spent. A large table was decorated, from which the guest of honor and the speakers were served lunch. Other guests were served by the ladies and the girls of the Girls' Sewing Club.

Seated at the table were Mrs. C. J. Somerville, her daughter Fern, Rev. Fr. Ricard, Mr. Harry Lobay, M.L.A. and Mrs. Lobay, Mr. Arthur Dube, chairman of the Nurses' Home committee and Mrs. Dube, Mrs. Octave Chevigny, Miss Sorensen, District Nurse from the Grassland district, and Mrs. R. E. Piquette.

During the first hour of the evening, a musical program was given by the Misses Gauthiers and the Misses Bowmans and Ethel Belanger. Lindsay Bowman, age eight years, sang a song and tap danced; Miss Shirley Gagnon appeared as a negro boy in a very entertaining song. The musical program was directed by Mrs. Napoleon Gauthier.

Rev. Fr. Ricard expressed appreciation on behalf of himself and the district to Mrs. Somerville for the work and leadership she had done while in this district, and expressed the hope that someday she would see her way clear to return.

Mr. Harry Lobay spoke on the work of the district nurses, and expressed the hope, that in this new system, whereby the government maintains the nurses' cottages, it would relieve the burden of the districts.

Mr. Arthur Dube expressed thanks on behalf of the nurses' home committee and the public, and he too expressed hope that some day Mrs. Somerville would return.

Miss Sorensen, R.N., was asked for a few words on her impressions of district nursing in this country. Miss Sorensen has only been in this country for a little over a year, coming here from Denmark. Her short speech was very impressive, and all were left with the feeling that they are fortunate to be in such a vast country.

Mrs. Octave Chevigny composed and read the farewell address as follows:

Dear Mrs. Somerville: On the eve of your departure, we the people of Plamondon and surrounding districts, wish to extend to you our most sincere appreciation for your services at nursing which you have rendered so efficiently in the district for the past two years.

The "District Nurse," better known as the "Angel of Mercy", is always on the alert, always ready to administer to the sick, going from home to home, at any time of the day or night, taking care of young and old as well, forgetting yourself for the welfare of others, and suffering humanity. You have been all this, and much more indeed, as you have also devoted yourself and much of your time to our young girls' club, winning by this the esteem of all the community.

We therefore wish to express to you our deep regrets at your departure, our congratulations on the keen interest you are taking in your profession by going ahead to gain more equitable knowledge, in taking post-graduate work. We hope you will successfully achieve the goal which you have set your heart upon to attain.

We also hope that we shall sometime in the near future have the privilege of welcoming you once more in our midst.

In conclusion, we all wish you the best of luck in your new work, and again we wish to tell you how much we appreciate all you have done for the district, and we thank you most heartily.

Please accept this little gift as a token from us all—the people of Plamondon and district.

The gift was brought in and presented by Mrs. Bert Plamondon. Mrs. Somerville then expressed her gratitude and thanks.

Mrs. R. E. Piquette expressed appreciation to all the ladies for their help and to the men for donations, and the hall committee for the hall.

The evening was brought to a close with She's a Jolly Good Fellow, and God Save Our Queen.

X-Ray Clinic To Be In Plamondon

The Tuberculosis X-Ray traveling clinic will be in the district around the last part of October. Please watch for posters as to dates.

It is hoped every family in the district will take advantage of this wonderful opportunity to have their families X-Rayed. With everyone's co-operation this can be one of the biggest clinics ever held in the district, which will show residents' appreciation to Mr. E. Baxter for arranging the trip into the district.

Mr. and Mrs. Granton Rushton, Dawn and Terry, of Gadsby, and Granton, a nephew in Edmonton, and Mrs. Bob Herbert of Red Deer, made a flash visit to the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeans and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith of Plamondon. Their visit was a very pleasant surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Graham, old-timers of this district, and now residing at Gadsby, spent a few days at the Jeans and Smith homes.

RECENTLY MARRIED, COUPLE ACCEPTED AS MISSIONARIES

LAC LA BICHE—Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cadieux of Lac la Biche, was joined in wedlock with Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Klingenberg of Aberdeen, Saskatchewan. The couple were married in the United Church, with Rev. C. P. Trugeon of Three Hills officiating.

The church archway was tastefully decorated with roses and baby's breath for the double ring ceremony on August 7 at 11:30 a.m.

The bride wore a floor length white satin gown with a long veil. Her jewelry was a gold photo locket, gift of the groom, and her bouquet was of pink and white gladioli, a gift from Mrs. Harry Lobay.

The bride was attended by Miss Ann Klingenberg, sister of the groom. Her gown was of sheer and she wore a finger tip veil. Her bouquet was the same as the bride's. Little Lillian Guinand as flower girl was lovely in a white organdie dress.

The groom was attended by David Cadieux, brother of the bride.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. Nick Shuston of Edmonton with vocal selections by Ann Klingenberg.

A reception for the couple was held at the home of Mrs. Elmer McQuitty. The bride's table was centred with a three tiered wedding cake and flowers. Dinner was served to 68 guests.

For her honeymoon the bride changed into a navy blue crepe dress. The couple left by car for Saskatchewan where they will visit relatives. They planned to be away about a month.

On their return they will reside at Whitehorse in the Yukon where they have been accepted as missionaries in that field. Edward is a graduate of the Prairie Bible Institute at Three Hills and Margaret also spent three years at the school.

Members of the groom's family who were present for the wedding from Aberdeen, Sask., were his parents Mr. and Mrs. Kingberg, brothers Ernest and George, sisters Ann, Gertrude, Ruth and Mrs. Mary Hopkins. George's wife Marie and their two children were also present.

A certain small restaurant was kept by a man who prided himself on his cooking. He was amazed to hear a young salesman criticize a pie one day.

"It might have been a larger class."

Modus Operandi

Two pickpockets had been following and old man whom they had seen display a fat wallet. Suddenly he turned and went into a lawyer's office.
"Good lor," said one, "a fine mess! Wot'll we do now?"
"Easy," said his mate, lighting a cigarette. "Wait for the lawyer."

One day while in town I met with my five year old nephew so I gave him a dime, but in a short while he was back asking for more money and I asked him what happened to the dime I gave him. "Well," he said, my pocket has a small hole and the dime slipped through, but a quarter would do fine."

Traffic Safety

Traffic Safety is an individual problem for each driver. He controls a machine which is capable of destroying the life and property of others and, what is far more personal, it can destroy him too.

City, Provincial and Federal Governments are all in the picture to provide safe highways, to write sane laws and to enforce these laws — but, they can't drive for the people. That's an individual problem.

That some drivers can stay out of trouble indefinitely is a matter of record. For example, large bus and truck companies, who keep meticulous accident records, honor a growing number of men each year who have driven a million miles without an accident. A private driver travelling 10,000 miles a year would have to drive 100 years without scratching a fender to equal these men.

Although most of us will never drive a million miles, we drive enough to get into minor trouble fairly often and serious trouble occasionally. For some of the 183 Alberta traffic victims last year, the first serious accident was their last. For others, the end simply climaxed a lifetime of in-different driving.

We have the word of safety people everywhere that ANY individual can improve his driving habits if he will only realize that he isn't already perfect and then have an honest try at doing better. Defensive driving is a phrase which has come into use to describe the attitude and behavior that keeps some people safe.

A defensive driver sees danger ahead and acts so that the danger never materializes. He sees opportunities to avoid conflict with other people using the road, and acts. He thinks of right-of-way as something to give instead of something to demand. He stays well back of the next vehicle. He never passes unless he is certain he can do so without endangering himself or anyone else. He signals his intended turns and stops and is not above letting pedestrians know that he can wait until they are in the clear. Also, he does not jump the green light.

The defensive driver is a gentleman but he can still reach any given destination just about as quickly as anyone else.

He has licked his personal traffic problems and so can all of us—if we try.

An Astronomer Talks

On Flying Saucers

Dr. Otto Struve, distinguished astronomer of the University of California, spoke recently at the Western Amateur Astronomers Convention. He talked at length on the question of whether flying saucers are space ships from another world.

Dr. Struve said he has combed the universe for evidence of intelligent beings. He finds that of all the places in the solar system, only the earth can support intelligent life. The green areas on Mars may be lichen and mosses, but they are not chlorophyll-producing vegetation. In addition, he says that there is not enough water on Mars to support human life.

Venus is wrapped up in suffocating carbon dioxide, and has no free oxygen or water. The temperature on Mercury is so hot that lead would melt. Life on other planets in the solar system is ruled out because they have atmosphere of ammonia and methane.

After doing away with the prospect of life in our solar system, Dr. Struve considers the millions and millions of stars in the Milky Way. He concedes that there might be a thousand inhabitable worlds floating around those stars, but he points out that the distance to these hypothetical worlds is 50,000 light-years.

If a flying saucer left a Milky Way world and travelled to this earth at the speed of light, 186,000 miles each second, it would take 100,000 years for the round trip. To put it mildly, Dr. Struve has found no evidence to support the theory that flying saucers are space ships from another world.

Meeting With Favour

When the Provincial Government first announced plans for the County System of local government we recorded in these columns our favour of the plan. We pointed out that it was only reasonable that the same governing body that had to find the money should have the say in how it should be spent. Continual friction, in fact, between some School Division Boards and some Municipal District Councils has made the County system almost necessary.

There have been a large number of School Boards opposing the system, even though the trial basis features upon which it has so far been introduced have been very fair. Now at least one school division, Camrose, has taken the initiative to request the establishment of a county.

It is known, too, that several other applications for the establishment of a county lie on the Minister's desk or in his brief case. So, it may be that within a year or two Alberta will be a patchwork of counties instead of a conglomeration of municipal, school and hospital board boundary lines.

While the county will do away with the confusion of municipal boundaries overstepping school division boundaries and vice-versa, the desires and wishes of smaller districts should be heeded to avoid inclusion of "minority" areas in districts not to their liking. Some of our counties have as much area as sovereign states in other parts of the world and when the local government areas are so big as that they tend to work against the principles of purely "local" government.

It is pretty hard for a farmer living 50 or 100 miles away from the municipal centre to attend a council meeting or even an annual ratepayers' meeting. However, in municipal districts where the Municipal paper plan is in operation each resident ratepayer knows what is going on because he can read for himself the reports of meetings, and other news concerning the local municipal government.

Where Does the Water Do More Good?

(From the Calgary Albertan)

An interesting discussion on the value of sloughs on prairie farms have developed between Camrose Canadian and the Stettler Independent.

The Camrose weekly reports, obviously with approval, the efforts of some district farmers in emptying their sloughs. These farmers, at little cost and in little time, pumped the water out of their sloughs on to high land. This not only made the high land more productive, through having added moisture, but it also made it possible to grow crops in the slough-bottoms.

But the Stettler paper disapproves of the project. It recalls that a good slough is—or used to be—an asset on any farm, and that the drying up of sloughs is a factor in creating "dust bowls." It notes that in both Canada (through the P.F.R.A.) and the United States, government efforts are directed at making more water reservoirs on the prairies, not fewer.

Off-hand, we would side with Camrose Canadian. The drying up of sloughs would seem to be an effect, not a cause, of dust-bowl conditions. In mixed farming districts any natural watering-place is valuable, but on a grain farm a slough in itself has little value. The water in that slough came from run-off from the high land, and it would seem to be sensible to put the water back on the high land. Where there is good crop growth there will be little soil erosion, and irrigating with slough water will contribute to that good crop growth.

But it is a controversial subject, one on which expert advice would be welcome.

Voice of the People

VIRTUES OF FREE ENTERPRISE

Britain's serious economic and financial difficulties are continually in the news. After seven years of policies of Socialism and Government Planning (called "The Welfare State") by the recent Labor-Socialistic Government, Britain is even worse off than she was some years ago. She is still importing more than she exports, still spending more than her income, and so her financial reserves are diminishing month by month. Britain, therefore, has to be aided by generous gifts from other countries, mainly from the United States, in order that she may feed, clothe and shelter her people and so that she can build up her armaments against threatening aggression.

For seven years Britain adopted Socialistic Planning as a cure for her troubles and to eliminate the alleged defects—so it was claimed—of the system of Competition and Free Enterprise. It is interesting to note, however, that Britain now has to be aided, by the accumulated wealth of the United States. This wealth for long years past has been created by that country's belief in that freedom which promotes individual enterprise, initiative and profits and savings; all of which is usually known as Free Enterprise. Surely there is a lesson here for those who are inclined towards Socialistic practices as a cure for economic and financial troubles.

Work Should Yield More Than Money

(From Papyrus)

"A great many people believe that work is what you do to earn enough so that you can have fun during the time when you don't have to work," sums up Dr. R. O. Jones, professor of psychiatry, Dalhousie University.

"This is a poor and curious philosophy, and it would be an important social change to make some general modification in this attitude by trying to teach our young people that work has some worth for itself and should be a source of satisfaction and of support to our mental health."

Dr. Jones points out that this is all the more so today, when homes are no longer close-knit family groups of people who do things together and give each other mutual support.

Work, he writes in the "Health League of Canada" magazine, should yield economic security, some measure of satisfaction from creative activity, and social contacts. And Dr. Jones finds that business and industry are attempting to meet these human needs in some degree. Furthermore he cites actual cases where study has shown that where these needs have been met successfully, absenteeism has been substantially reduced and production has increased.

He does not think for a minute that vocational guidance has all the answers; but does believe that a careful selection of workers and a fitting of individuals to jobs according to their temperament and ability is an important starting point.

"The worker who isn't properly placed in a job is almost bound to be discontented and dissatisfied," comments Dr. Jones. "Discontentment and dissatisfaction are just about as contagious as the measles, and only a very few workers feeling this way may infect all the rest of the plant."

Another recommendation is for the provision of consultation facilities for workers who are dissatisfied. A worker with any health problem, either mental or physical, should be encouraged to discuss his case with a doctor.

What's In The Name?

ASHMONT

The village of Ashmont, located some 25 miles west from St. Paul, was named after a suburb of Boston, Mass., former home of the postmaster, L. W. Babcock. Farming is the main type of occupation carried on within this region.

ECKVILLE

The village of Eckville, with a population of 376, is situated in a farming region some 30 miles west of Red Deer. It was named after A. E. T. Eckford, early settler of the area. The CPR station is sometimes called "Kootuk."

The village itself is composed of seven garages, one hotel, six stores, four restaurants and four grain elevators.

For a brief history of the village, the first postmaster was J. H. Kellick, who operated the post office from his general store. The first school was built in 1908, and is now used as a church.

Henry Paepe Is President Of Egg Lake Coal Company Ltd.

MORINVILLE — It was announced here last week that a new company has been organized with a former partner, Henry Paepe elected president. The new Egg Lake Coal Company Limited, with Mr. Paepe at its head, replaces the former partnership of Thomas J. Logan and Henry Paepe.

Additional members of the new firm are Etienne Beke, who as office manager and accountant has been associated with the mine for four years; and Yvon Gouin, well known district resident who has been farming at Vimy and who also has been a contractor for road building. Mr. Gouin is vice-president and Mr. Beke secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Paepe stated that the Egg Lake Coal Mine will be operated much the same as before. Known throughout the province for high quality coal, and good service, the Egg Lake Coal Mine Company Ltd. looks forward to serving its thousands of satisfied customers and no doubt many new ones.

Mr. Logan, who had made many friends in his connection with the coal mine, has sold his interests to members of the new firm. Tom's business plans for the future are not yet definite, but after a holiday trip to British Columbia it is understood he will take up residence in Edmonton.

The Egg Lake Coal Mine got its start in 1941, with partners Tom Logan and Henry Paepe digging their first coal with pick and shovel. It was the first strip mine in the district, and quickly adopted modern methods of producing quality coal at lowest cost. From an initial production of 300 tons the first season the mine has rapidly increased to over 50,000 tons in the 1951-52 season.

LETTERS TO LOUISA

Dear Louisa:

We have three girls, all of a very hospitable nature. They think nothing of bringing in guests for meals every day.

Now I realize that it is nice for them to be sociable and popular but the situation has its disadvantages. To begin with if I have enough meat for five, the dish seems rather skimpy for six. As I never know when the extra guest or guests are to appear, the only solution seems to always be prepared for at least six or more at every meal.

However, the real drawback to this remedy is that my budget is based on food for five instead of a larger number of people—with an allowance for guests, occasionally.

My real trouble is in getting the family to discuss the matter at all. If I mention it, my husband thinks I am campaigning for more money and the children think I begrudge their friends a little bread and meat.

As a matter of fact, I think we spend quite enough for food and I do not want more money—all I want is a little friendly cooperation.

In by-gone days, when people had large families, entertained relatives by the month and had lots of servants, one or two extra people made no difference, but today the situation is different.

Do you think it would be a good idea to call the family together and try to discuss the matter or would you consider it a worthless effort?

MOTHER.

Answer:

You say you have difficulty in getting them to discuss the matter so it seems to me that this is your real problem.

You might have more success if you begin your discussion by saying that you do not want more money and you do not object to guests. Then put your figures on the table and show how it will feed five every day and eight occasionally but not eight every day. Try to make them understand that being prepared for extra people is just about as expensive as having them there. And then suggest that they each chose a day of the week on which they will feel free to invite a guest—as a regular thing.

Of course, occasions will come up when other people will have to be entertained but this solution of your problem seems to me rather fair to everyone. On the days you are not expecting extra people, you can cut down and in this way make ends meet.

If young people understand why we wish to do certain things, they are usually quite reasonable but the real job is in getting them to understand the whys and the wherefores.

You speak as though your children bring in these extra people without warning—if so, I fear you have been very lax in your training. Children should certainly have been taught to be more considerate than that. It is rather late to teach them now, but I wish you luck.

LOUISA.

Sterling Restrictions Holding Back Capital

EDMONTON—Only sterling restrictions are holding back a great influx of British capital into Alberta, according to Ralph R. Moore, provincial deputy minister of economic affairs.

Mr. Moore made the comment on his return from a 2,500 mile, ten-week tour of the United Kingdom. He was accompanied by Mrs. Moore.

"If it were not for the sterling restrictions, there would be a large movement of British capital to Canada and particularly to Alberta," Mr. Moore said.

Hot weather now, but cold weather coming!

That indicates nothing more than the fact that it is now time to order your supply of coal. Put your order in early so as not to be disappointed. Be prepared for the wintry days that lie ahead.

One time when I came to a party I noticed that my brother and another boy looked just alike. Later I saw one of them picking at the icing of a cake. I was sure it was my brother, so I poked him and said, "Stop that, what will that cake look like?" When he turned around was I embarrassed! He looked at me and said, "It doesn't taste so good anyway." N.W. Bruderheim, Alta.

While busy with the housework after a long absence from home, I decided to go and get the mail. I hurriedly put on a coat over my dirty dress and a big, sloppy old pair of shoes. Hoping no one would notice my strange get-up, I enquired at the post office wicket for my mail. The Postmaster's four-year-old daughter chirped a merry greeting with, "Hi, Helen, you haven't changed much." Then, looking at my over-size shoes, she embarrassed me in front of all the patrons in the office by adding, "Not much, that is, but your feet grew bigger." MRS. C. K. Gainford, Alta.
